This leaflet explains the telephone advice line run by the Dorset Epilepsy Service.

Telephone advice line

The aim of the telephone advice line service is to:

- Provide advice and support for adult patients with epilepsy
- Offer health information and advice to patients, carers and health professionals on all aspects of epilepsy

Who can use this service?

The telephone advice line service is available to adults living in Dorset who has epilepsy. It can also be used by anyone who cares for you, as long as you have given your permission. We will only discuss confidential matters with you.

When should you use this service?

This is not an emergency service. You should use it if:

- You have been asked by one of the neurology team to report your progress
- You have any worries or concerns that cannot wait until your next appointment
- You have any questions about epilepsy

The advice line should not be used for:

- Requesting results of blood tests or investigations
- MRI results
- EEG (electroencephalograph) results
- Changing appointments
- Contacting other departments, e.g. X-ray, dermatology, etc.
- General advice that can wait until your next appointment

How does it work?

The advice line has an answerphone. Please leave your name, telephone number and a short message. One of the specialist nurses will return your call as soon as possible. We aim to return calls within three working days. If you have an urgent medical problem, you must contact your GP surgery, call 111 or go to your nearest emergency department.

This line can be very busy so it is helpful to email instead if you can. Please email any questions that you may have to:

Dorset.Epilepsy.Service@uhd.nhs.uk

We will respond as soon as we can.
